Germans Chased By Iceland; Fair Play Award By Default?

The Germans screamed out of the gates in round one, and a goalscoring onslaught by strikers, Isabella and Alyssa, has targeted the Germans as many experts favorites to hoist the trophy. The only issue Germany may have to overcome -- inexperienced coaching. Iceland drew level on Tuesday and Holland and Brazil are close behind. Congo is apparently waiting to stage a late run as they sit at the basement of the standings with only 2 points. Antigua, Singapore, and USA made a small "push" on Tuesday. The drama will continue to unfold in Round 3 on Wednesday!

FAIR PLAY AWARD? USA?

The only team not yet accused of cheating may be the frontrunner for FIFA's fair play award. Even Coach Alex and Coach Hana are being investigated by FIFA. Troubling?

Singapore or Turkey?

When you dawn the national flag of a country that is not your own you are guaranteed to find yourself in the news! The Singapore National team rolled out in new kits on Tuesday during the 2nd round of the World Cup. Only issue, the team uniforms appeared from Turkey. "It's not a big deal" said one Singaporean player. "I think there are different numbers of stars or something", reported another. Singapore coach gave players the assignment of bringing one fact about the nation to training. Maybe some investemnt in "who" you play for will pay dividends on the pitch?

LEADING GOALSCORERE Isabella (L) and Alyssa (R) have been the Germans leading goalscorers in the first two rounds and in fact lead all scoreres. Golden Boot favorites?

COACH JOHN SUPER SUB: Iceland was propelled to a tie with leaders Germany after Coach John subbed for Coach Tom on Tues. Was it coaching (or 5 points missed on Mon)?

TAMPERING? It has been drawn into question at this year's World Cup as many coaches have been suspected of illegal recruiting. Coach Paulo of Germany "caught in the act"?
